How would you explain to someone who doesn’t work at, or isn’t a patient of Tufts-NEMC, how the health of the hospital matters?

Boston has a healthcare landscape that includes a large number of players, and the diversity among those players that makes Boston unique is what moves you either up or down along the way. So when you work at a hospital, it will allow Boston to become mediocre—or at least too-distant a future for the state of this city. Based on the dynamism and the robustness of what you do on any one level, it will make Boston continue to move and move forward. The competition amongst us isn’t a bad thing.

How do you plan to approach any changes or upgradations when it comes to the physical structure of the hospital?

You would say that relationship is now?

And if you’re going to build a condominium on the corner of one street and another, you have business needs.
